

MOUNTAIN LION BAGGED IN HILLS BY MISSION MAN

To Louis Souza, of Mission San Jose, goes the honor of bagging the first mountain lion to be taken out of the Livermore hills this year. Souza, who has applied for his bounty to the Fish and Game commission, brought the huge cat into town Sunday. It measured six feet, four and one-half inches from tail to nose, and tipped the beam at ninety-five pounds.

Souza surprised the animal in the mountains east of Livermore just as it was about to begin a feast on a newly slain doe. It leaped away through the brush, but a single shot from Souza's gun brought the big feline to the ground.

Game Warden Fred Rogers stated this week that numerous carcasses of deer have been found in that section, probably all victims of the lion.

Publisher to Return From Extended Vacation

Norman H. Parks, publisher of the Township Register, and Mrs. Parks, will return to Niles Saturday from Long Beach, which is their last stopping place on an extended summer vacation.

Mr. Parks, who returned recently from a motor trip to Chicago, continued on to the southern part of the state, where he joined Mrs. Parks, who is sojourning there. While in Long Beach they were visited by their niece, Mrs. Gillis, of Phoenix, Arizona.

Mrs. Antone Garcia visited with her aunt in San Francisco last week.

FORMER LOCAL TEACHER IS SEIZED FOR EMBEZZLEMENT

W. O. Davies, San Leandro Superintendent, Taught School at Irvington

W. O. Davies, former Irvington school teacher, and now superintendent of city schools for San Leandro, was arrested Tuesday for the alleged embezzlement of public funds.

The shortage, discovered by county auditors for the grand jury, amounted to $2700 for the fiscal year ended July 1, and will be more for the entire period of Davies' defalcation, county authorities said.

Davies is said to have confessed embezzlement, saying that he had taken school district funds for the past year and a half in an attempt to meet personal debts incurred with a drop in real estate values.

The matter was discovered when inspection of the books of the San Leandro school district was made as a part of the routine work of auditors for the grand jury.

Formal charge will be placed against the school official as soon as the audit is completed, according to county authorities. Davies, who did not attempt to cover up the shortage because he may have cast suspicion on an innocent man, said that his family did not know of his actions.

He was well-known in the Irvington district about sixteen years ago, while he was a teacher in the school there. He was elevated to his present position in 1920.

Bristows Return After Vacation at Marysville

Following a summer vacation at Marysville, Mr. and Mrs. E. Dixon Bristow, and daughter, Mary Virginia, have returned to Niles. Bristow, who is principal of the grammar school here, will take up his active administrative duties next Tuesday, when the regular fall term will open.

Armed Trio Robs Centerville Grocery

ANNUAL LUNCHEON TO OPEN FALL CLUB SEASON

September 12 is the date set for the annual reciprocity luncheon, given each fall by the Country Club of Washington Township. The affair will be held at the club house on Parish avenue, Centerville.

Mrs. F. T. Dusterberry, president of the women's organization, states that Mrs. Earle B. Shoemsmith, president of the district federation, and Mrs. Newton Cleveland, president of the county federation, will be guests of honor. Presidents of other clubs, numbering about twenty, will be on hand for the event.

Mrs. E. Dixon Bristow will have charge of program arrangements. She has promised an interesting musical afternoon, members said. Year books, arranged by Mrs. George Coit, will be presented on that day.

K. Nakamura Victimized Second Time in Two Years

Three holdup men, said to be Filipinos, entered the K. Nakamura grocery store, at Centerville, shortly before closing time Tuesday night, and escaped in an automobile with $35 in cash, after forcing the proprietor to open the cash drawer. It was the second hold-up at the Nakamura store in two years.

According to Nakamura, he was waiting on two customers at about 8:30 p. m., when the trio entered the store and asked for beer and tobacco, for which they made payment. As the proprietor was finishing with the other customers, the three men separated, one standing near the door, and the other two taking up a position.

APRICOT PRICES RISE ANOTHER CENT LAST WEEK

Santa Clara valley dried apricot producers are getting results from their tendency to hold, it is noted this week, following a small rise in prices being offered. A one-cent addition to prices prevailing early last week bring the level for standards to 12 cents. Other grades: choice, 13 cents; extra choice, 14 cents; fancy, 15 cents; extra fancy, 16 cents; fancy moorpark, 16 cents and extra fancy moorpark, 17 1/2 cents.

The rise has caused packers to increase slightly their earlier quotations to the trade. Stiffening of the Santa Clara valley market is largely due to the fact that relatively few open contracts have been signed here, whereas many were taken in the interior sections. The latter had to take what packers offered.

A possible further increase is seen in the fact that only a portion of the Santa Clara valley crop remains unsold, while the interior valley crops are almost cleaned up.

LIONS WILL HEAR LEGISLATION TALK ON SEPTEMBER 10

Meeting at the Black 'N' White cafe Tuesday night, the Centerville Lions club laid plans for a meeting on September 10, at which William F. Knowland will discuss the high points of the year's state legislation. Representatives of other civic bodies in the district will be invited.

The Centerville club also discussed plans to attend the Golden Gate Council meeting, to be held at Pleasanton tonight. Twenty-five members signified their intention to go.

Whist Party Planned By Church Members

A whist party, to be given at the Veterans' Memorial building, Niles, is being planned by members of the Corpus Christi parish here. Date for the event is September 19. There will be numerous prizes given.

Pheasants Released by Sportsmen in Township

Joe Corey, of Irvington, along with other members of a Hayward sportsmen's organization, released several coveys of Chinese pheasant chicks in this district last week. The brightly-plumaged birds, made legal game recently, are among the most difficult to bag, hunters say. Corey will also release a number of quail here at a later date.

PEDESTRIAN STRUCK BY MACHINE NEAR WARM SPRINGS

Both the pedestrian and the motorist, traditionally at odds, got the worst of a freak accident near Warm Springs last Thursday, when Joseph Pearce, walking on the highway, was struck by a car controlled by William Waters, of San Jose. The Waters car, after striking Pearce, plunged from the road and crashed into a tree.

Pearce suffered a possible fracture of the skull, while Mrs. Waters, riding with her husband, sustained severe lacerations and bruises when she was hurled through the windshield of the car. Both of the injured persons were rushed to a San Jose hospital.

The accident is said to have occurred when Pearce, who was talking to M. Silveria at the roadside, stepped onto the pavement. He became confused at the sound of Water's horn and began dodging back and forth in the path of the machine. In the attempt to avoid hitting the panicky pedestrian, Waters lost control of his vehicle.

YEAR'S PROBATION GIVEN TWO PEACE DISTURBERS

Twelve months of good behavior in Washington township, will be mandatory for Victor Costa and Clifford Silveria, local men, following their appearance before Judge J. A. Silva Friday, on charges of disturbing the peace brought by the Niles Junior Chamber of Commerce. Harley Gibson, held on a similar charge was placed on probation for thirty days.

The charges were brought following a series of brawls at the Niles Junior Chamber canyon dance recently, in which the three men were involved. The decision to bring action was reached at a special meeting of the civic group's board of directors, on Sunday, August 18. It was pointed out at that time that the future of good dances in this district depended on the ability of the sponsoring bodies to conduct the social affairs in such a way that outsiders will be attracted.

Both Silveria and Costa pleaded guilty to the charges. Gibson, after entering a plea of not guilty, reversed his stand. It had been said that he was involved in the altercations in self defense.

DISTRICT SCOUT COMMITTEE WILL MEET NEXT WEEK

Notified by the chairman, Allen G. Norris, this week, members of the District Boy Scout committee will gather at the Centerville Justice court next Wednesday night to discuss plans for activities this fall among the scout troops.

Norris stated that the subject of finances will be brought up, both for this year and next.

Harold Benner, assistant district commissioner, and Albert Lewis, commissioner, will be on hand to prepare troop schedules and to assist in outlining a system of training for scouts here.

Services at Irvington Church to Be Resumed

Regular services will be resumed Sunday at the Irvington Community church, according to a notice received Tuesday from the Rev. John E. Moore.

The pastor urges attendance, and states that the initial preaching service will be based on the subject, "When Jesus Meets Our Need for Faith."

FALL TERM STARTS NEXT TUESDAY AT GRAMMAR SCHOOL

Faculty to Remain Same, With Addition of One Teacher

Niles Grammar school children will troop back to their classes next Tuesday morning after their summer vacation, when the regular fall term will get under way. Although the number of incoming students could not be estimated closely at this time, Principal E. Dixon Bristow states that the attendance should be the same, or slightly higher than last year's. A number of new faces in the town point to additional enrollments.

Various repairs and renovations were authorized by the board of trustees during the summer months, to have the buildings in first class shape for the session. Rooms in the small building have been tinted and painted, and new window shades installed in several of the rooms. The main building has received a general overhaul, including painting of woodwork and the strengthening of stairs.

The teaching staff will remain the same, school officials stated, with the addition of one teacher, Miss Margaret Breier, who will

UNUSUAL AUGUST STORM BREAKS LOCAL RAIN RECORD

Police Seeking Man Accused Of Attack Try

County authorities are conducting a search this week for an unidentified man, for an attempted attack on a Los Angeles girl hitch-hiker near Alvarado Tuesday night.

The girl, who gave her name as Caroline Hatfield, 19, of Los Angeles, said that she had accepted a ride with the motorist at Santa Maria. She told police that he stopped near the Harvey ranch on the Alvarado road and seized her with obvious intention to attack her. She screamed and leaped from the car, after which he immediately fled. She was taken into Centerville by M. S. Garcia, who turned her over to Constable Tom Silva. The sheriff's office was notified, and officers, under orders from Hugo Radbruch began a search for the alleged attacker.

He is described as about 45 years old, with a small mustache. The girl had not learned his name. Officers Rithie, Stroble and Radbruch are investigating.

Crops Endangered When Downpour Brings .31 Inches Monday

A sultry week-end, that shattered records for sustained high night temperatures, developed into an unusual August storm Monday that brought well over a quarter of an inch of rain to Washington township. The Southern Pacific rain gauge, at Niles, measured .31, setting an all-time record for a single August storm.

Coming in the midst of the harvest season, the freak downpour, which lasted all day Monday, caught prune growers in this district with their crops ready for picking. Some of the fruit is already spread on trays. Other than slight cracking and a moderate fall, however, the crop seems to be little damaged, farmers said, due to the continuance of dry weather since the storm. Weather men, caught unawares by the rain, were reluctant to predict dry weather this week.

Some hay, and early tomatoes here received a good soaking, which may result in small losses. Cauliflower growers, however, were pleased with the moisture, which will aid their new plants, recently set out. Some delay was experienced in the later fields, now in the process of planting.

The early storms outdid last year's first rain, which brought .24 on September 23. All sections of the state were dampened this time, with San Jose recording the heaviest fall since 1913 with .52. Salinas reported .31 and Napa .25.

Meteorologists reported that the unsettled weather along the coast of California was caused by hot air currents forced northward from a hurricane center off the coast of lower California.

Stolen Cars Discovered Stripped Near Alvarado

Several stolen cars, found stripped in the vicinity of Alvarado late last week, have led police to believe that another car-theft epidemic, such as was experienced last year, may be impending. Immediate steps are being taken to combat the possibility.

Last Thursday night, a car belonging to K. Akinaga, Alvarado man, was found divested of its accessories, after it had disappeared from his garage the night before.

CENTER WILL SUBMIT PETITIONS FOR PRO-RATE

Reports on the proposed organization of a tomato pro-rate district for Southern Alameda county were heard Tuesday night, when members of the Eden-Washington Farm Center, gathered at the Washington Union High school, Centerville, for their first meeting after a summer interlude. The meet was held in the school cafeteria. Herbert Young, director, presided.

It was pointed out that the number of names required, and the acreage area obtained is sufficient, and that the next step will be to present the petitions to the state commission, for the necessary check and hearing.

Whether action will be taken soon enough for the proposed area to effect this year's crop is uncertain, it is said.

Mrs. John E. Kimber, and two sons, are spending a two-week vacation in the southern part of the state. Kimber, who recently attended a poultrymen's convention in the east, has returned.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I.—Theodore Gatlin decided to adopt a baby in a final effort to solve his matrimonial troubles. But all his love for his foster daughter could not shelter her childhood from the hatred of his wife, who had never wanted her. Their affairs ended in the divorce court but ten-year-old Penelope was given into the keeping of Mrs. Gatlin, except for two Sunday afternoons a month. On their first day together they set out joyfully to a baseball game. A ball, hit into the bleachers, struck Penelope on the nose and the neurotic Mrs. Gatlin removed her from the hospital to which her former husband had hurried her. Mrs. Gatlin spirited the child to Europe. Gatlin retired from business, willed Penelope all his money, and was about to begin a search for his daughter when a motor accident ended his life.

CHAPTER II.—Some ten years later, in San Francisco, Stephen Burt, a rising young psychiatrist, was presented by Dan McNamara, chief of police, with a new patient—Nance Belden, a girl whose terrible childhood had left her with a dual personality, for which her "saddle nose" was in part responsible. McNamara did not think she was a responsible criminal and obtained Burt's expert testimony in court. Even Lanny, the doctor's faithful office nurse, was won over to her cause despite Nance's hard-boiled exterior.

CHAPTER III.—Nance's criminal record outweighed Doctor Burt's clear explanation of her case and she was sent to San Quentin penitentiary for two years. Lanny visited her and Nance persuaded her to smuggle out a letter, which a confederate stole from her handbag outside the prison walls.

CHAPTER IV.—Nance escaped, although shot, by swimming out to a speedboat manned by friends and went to Lanny's apartment. Lanny told Chief McNamara, who ordered her to bring Nance to his apartment and phoned for Doctor Burt.

CHAPTER V.—One of the men in the boat on which Nance escaped—two of them ex-convicts, the other a bootlegger—had been wounded and they went to Burt's office, where McNamara found them. The bootlegger he let go and he took the others to his home, ordering the uninjured one to care for Nance and his pal. From them he learned that Nance's real name was Penelope Gatlin. Detective Sergeants Flynn and Angellotti, seeking the reward offered for Nance's apprehension, went to Lanny's apartment in search of Nance. Looking over her San Quentin cell, McNamara found a blank check on a San Jose bank.

CHAPTER VII

LANNY, very white and shaken, was in her living room, pistol in hand, watching the stairs, when McNamara and Stephen came noiselessly in the back door. The chief whipped out his pistol and went unhesitatingly up the stairs. Presently he called them to come up.

They found him standing in the doorway leading into Lanny's guest chamber. "Take a look at that," he ordered.

They looked. Lying in the bed, sound asleep, was Nance Belden! "Got to get her out of here," Dan McNamara decided. "Flynn and Angellotti finally got on her trail, no doubt about that—and it's a mighty cold trail those two dicks can't follow. I suspected this, and the note she left at my house confirms it. It's just the mercy of God that Flynn and Angellotti didn't happen to slip into my domicile and find the note. If they had I'd be sunk. They can suspect all they want to, but hanging it on to me is another pair of boots, as the French say."

"Can't you give the miserable snoopers an office job?" Lanny demanded. She was faintly provoked at Daniel for his lack of initiative. "Would you herd cows with a couple of horses that had won the derby?" "Oh!" "Wake that psychopathic nuisance up, Lanny, and get her down here. I've got to find out things or go crazy. Besides, she hasn't had any dinner."

"Let the poor lamb sleep, Dan," glended Lanny. "I need a lot of sleep myself, and I can't get it until I know how, when and where Nance and her gang made the getaway. Suppose Flynn and Angellotti let them make the getaway; suppose Flynn followed Nance? They'd do that; they wouldn't risk getting in Dutch with me by making the pinch as the gang came out of my house. They have some loyalty and a lot of com-get recognized, of course, so when he runs I'll fire in the air. He'll know who I am, but he'll never suspect I know who he is."

McNamara bade Nancy, Lanny and Stephen goodnight and hurried away in a taxi. A block from his home he alighted and walked down the side of the street opposite his own house. He was whistling softly as he came abreast of Angellotti's hiding place, where he turned at right angles, apparently with the intention of crossing in the middle of the street to his own house. A step from the curb he halted, turned, bent his head in a listening attitude, then stepped resolutely into the alley.

"Who's there?" he demanded. Receiving no answer, he got out a small flashlight, he seemed to have some difficulty flashing it on, for he cursed softly, and suddenly a beam from the flashlight illuminated his own face for an instant, but long enough, he decided, to permit the watchful Angellotti to recognize him. The alley was empty, but in a little garden strip a large syringa bush grew, and instinct warned the chief that his prey was behind it. So he walked past it, his flashlight held close to the bush, and as he had anticipated, it was snatched from him. As he turned, one of his stout legs was jerked from under him by a man crouching low; so, before permitting himself to topple forward, McNamara dropped his good right arm to the level of his knee and swung a short, stabbing punch. He felt a cheekbone and the side of a nose; so he punched again, a little higher up, and then fell over backward. Instantly his assailant rose and fled like a doe.

"Halt! I'm an officer," McNamara shouted, and fired into the air. But the running man did not even hesitate. In the morning he sent for Angellotti for a report on a certain case, and was charmed to note a faintly lemonish spot on the Italian's left cheek and a very noticeable redness under the left eye. The chief grinned. "What does the other fellow look like, Angellotti?" he queried innocently. "He couldn't have been more'n a fly-weight or he'd have done more damage! How come you let some runt one-two you like that?"

"It was a dame I picked up for drunkenness," Angellotti lied with the glibness of long practice. Following some discussion of the report, McNamara dismissed him, and sat down to decide what to do with Nance Belden. That Flynn and Angellotti were keeping his house under surveillance he knew now; undoubtedly they would enter his house at the earliest favorable opportunity.

The chief wondered what he would do if he stood in the shoes of the two detectives. "I'd wait for a night when I wouldn't be disturbed for a couple of hours," he decided. "What night would that be? Why, Thursday night, when the board of police commissioners meet and I am in attendance there. Stephen will make his usual evening call—and as soon as he leaves the house those two will slip into it. The cellar door, of course. I'll make it easy for them. I'll leave the door unlocked."

He concluded that until then, Nance would be safe at Lanny's house. In the meantime, however, he must arrange to get her out of the city at an early date. The detectives were both absolutely satisfied Lanny had once given Nance sanctuary for a brief period; trust them, therefore, to keep an eye on Lanny's house.

He had in his office a telephone line that did not connect with the private exchange system in the central station, so he called Lanny on his phone at Doctor Burt's office now.

"Dan speaking, Lanny. Tomorrow morning you had better buy our pet nuisance a lot of clothes, so she'll be all ready to get out of town when I send for her. I think I'll have to fly her out and down to Tia Juana, Lower California."

"I'll think that Tia Juana stunk over," Lanny decided. "It has possibilities. Is there a good hospital there?"

"I don't think so. Why?" "You nunsbunkul, Dan McNamara! We have to find a quiet hospital where we can have her poor nose operated on."

"Well, if we can get her beeper restored and change that black bob of hers to a movie-tone gold, she could take Flynn and Angellotti out to dinner and they'd never suspect her."

"Stevie says her nose must be operated on first. Her present state of dissociated personality probably started in an inferiority complex, and the inferiority complex probably arose out of the knowledge that her nose made her unlovely. When it's safe to bring her back to this city, Stevie will take her soul out and look at it, dust it off, put it back and do a Little Jack Horner."

"Can he do that?" McNamara's heavy voice was freighted with awe.

"He can, provided he can find a starting point for his investigation into her past life. There is always a reason for a dissociated personality. The ground for the mental shock that causes it is usually prepared long before the psychosis opens. Rebellious thoughts, unhappiness, brooding—all these eventually have a serious effect upon sensitive and highly intelligent people and particularly, women of the hysterical type."

"All women are hysterical," McNamara said with conviction.

"You're a dear boob, Dan. Eight women out of ten can throw a fit of hysterics as easily as you'd break an egg, particularly if there is a man to be impressed. They never simulate hysterics to impress a woman, however, because they know better."

"Well, you get your girl a trousseau and warn her to keep away from the window and not to answer the doorbell, or do any telephoning, or leave the house until she has my permission. I don't expect she'll obey, so tonight when you go home have some hysterics to impress her."

"Dan, dear, I couldn't. I'm hard as a picnic egg. Did you stage your little comedy after leaving us last night?"

"I did—and it worked out exactly."

"Good gracious. Well, I'm busy. Good-by."

Nance Belden's personalities were a source of keen professional interest to Lanny, who regretted that for the present Doctor Burt was unable to share her observations with her. She had, as yet, had no opportunity of ascertaining anything regarding the girl's past history, but she had a suspicion that Nance had had advantages superior to most girls.

Her hands were the very first thing (with the exception of her poor wrecked nose) that Lanny had noticed. They were soft, shapely, small and well kept, decidedly not the hands of a factory girl. While her vocabulary was a trifle "salty," running at times to the idiom of the ill bred and ignorant, her voice was soft, with well bred intonations. Her clothing, on the occasion of her visit to Stephen Burt's office, had been, in Lanny's judgment, in splendid taste; rich but not flashy, up to the mode but not beyond it. Then, too, Nance had a slow, leisurely walk, she knew how to enter a room, she was sure of herself at all times without display of assurance.

Thus far Lanny had observed the girl only in this showoff phase of her personality. She was amazed, therefore, on coming home from the office after her conversation with McNamara, to find her a complete changeling. As she entered the house she caught the odor of cooking, and going into the kitchen, she discovered Nance, with one of Lanny's kitchen aprons on her, preparing dinner.

"Good evening, Lanny dear," she saluted her hostess. "It occurred to me it must be a very great trial to you, coming home tonight after night from the office, tired, and having to prepare dinner for yourself. I'm sure you're too tired most of the time to prepare more than a very sketchy meal, and that isn't good for you." She smiled. "So I thought I'd have a nice dinner for you."

"Now, I call that real sweet, Nance."

"My name isn't Nance, Lanny. It's Penelope."

"Penelope what?"

"Penelope Gatlin. Silly old Lanny, how could you forget?"

"You've placed your finger on my dread secret, Penelope. When I'm tired my memory fails me."

Lanny knew that during the day a psychological door had opened and Nance Belden, otherwise personality B, the abnormal, had walked through it and emerged Penelope Gatlin, or personality A, the normal. Also, she knew now that Penelope Gatlin probably had more or less amnesia for her former personality as Nance Belden. Lanny had heard Doctor Burt discuss such rare cases and she glowed with pride in the knowledge that at last he had secured a perfect specimen.

"I decided, we wouldn't have broiled lamb chops, Lanny," the girl went on brightly, "so I've made a ragout."

"You mean, in good old Americanese, you've concocted an Irish stew."

"You're so amusing, Lanny. A stew, of course. The difference between a stew and a ragout is entirely geographic. A ragout in France, a Irish stew in the United States."

"Have you lived in France?" "Eight years, Lanny. Went to school in Switzerland and learned French there."

"Are you people French?" "I think I was there alone." The girl appeared puzzled. "I don't remember my mother, but I had a father. He was such a dear, but he's dead."

"Were you happy there?" "No, I was perfectly miserable." "Why?" "Because my father wasn't with me. We'd been such pals."

"But you must have lived with somebody."

"There was Laurette, the cook, and Babette, the maid."

"Did you graduate?"

"No, I left school when father died. He was killed in a motor accident enroute to Europe. I've always had a feeling he was coming over to see his Penelope. He loved me very much, Lanny. He was adorable. He used to tell me that I was all that made his life bearable. Somebody—I forgot who—told me he wasn't my real father, that I was a foundling he adopted. I wouldn't believe that at first, but when I read his will I knew it was so."

"What sort of woman was his wife—or did he have one?" "I haven't the slightest idea, but I remember the will stated very positively that he had settled with her, that she had accepted the settlement in full satisfaction of her dower rights, and he made my income from the trust just sufficient to support me decently until I should come of age. He said in his will that he did this not because of any lack of affection for me, but because if he made me an excessive allowance, his divorced wife would have control of it during my minority. He must have despised her."

"Well, if she could have control of your income during your minority, she must have been your adopted mother," the practical Lanny reasoned. "And you must have lived with her following the divorce. That's why you didn't see your father in Europe. Do you remember everything that has happened to you since that day Dan McNamara brought you to Doctor Burt's office?"

"Perfectly."

"Ever have funny thoughts about it?"

The girl stared at her shrewdly. "How strange that you should ask that question, Lanny. I do have funny thoughts. Sometimes I'm horrified at the memory and could die of shame; at other times it seems perfectly all right, but those are the times when I've been nervous and sleepless; sometimes I think there's something wrong with me, because people often refer to me as Nance Belden and to things I've done and which I know very well I haven't done. And yet it seems to me sometimes as if I had—just a wraith of memory, like an old dream. But still I'm strong and healthy."

"But a little given to spells of nervousness?" "I'm moody." The girl seemed interested in herself to an unusual degree. "Some days I like to do things that are perfectly intolerable to me on other days." She sighed and turned to inspect her savory ragout. "I wish I knew what I wanted in life and I wish I knew somebody that wanted me. Of course I can pay my way through life, but it's terrible to be lonely, Lanny."

"Listen here, Penny, my dear. You aren't the only lonely woman in this world. Believe it or not, the first spring buttercup isn't a bit more welcome in old lady Lanning's house than you are."

The lost one beamed upon her. "I believe that, Lanny. Oh, Lanny, when I'm happy I'm so happy and when I'm wretched I'm so wretched."

"You think too much about that nose of yours, my poor child."

The girl's hand flew to that organ (automatically, Lanny thought) as if she would hide it. "Isn't it terrible?" she quavered. "I'm so ugly nobody can ever love me."

"Quit that," Lanny commanded in her most ferocious manner. "If I hadn't found you lovable I wouldn't have you in my house this minute. I'd turn you over to Flynn and Angellotti. By the way," she continued, "how did you get that sock on the beeper?"

"Father took me to a baseball game and a long drive flew into the bleachers and struck me on the nose. Lanny, you mustn't use slang. It isn't polite."

"I wrap myself around a highball when I'm tired or want to be sociable, and I smoke cigarettes," Lanny protested. "I suppose a perfect lady wouldn't do those things, either?"

"A perfect lady may without marring her perfection, old fuss-budget. That's a matter of personal liberty, and only becomes distressing when carried to excess. But there's no excuse for a highly intelligent and cultured woman to employ the language of the streets."

"I have my human moments," Lanny excused herself meekly.

"I'll set the table in the dining room. Won't you order some flowers? And Lanny—I'll do something for you some day."

"For instance?"

"Well, have you ever been to Europe?"

"Certainly not."

"Then I'll take you."

"I accept the nomination. In return I'll do something else for you. I'll have that nose of yours split open, the shattered bone of the bridge scraped out and a cute little piece of pliable cartilage whittled off one of your spare ribs, and grafted into your funny nose to form a new bridge. Then the doctor will sew your nose together again over it."

"What's the difference between having a nose like a pekinese and a makeshift with a big scar on it, I'd like to know?"

"Oh, there won't be any scar, dearie. The surgeon will cut a piece of epidermis off your forehead and without detaching it from your forehead, bring the flap down, drape it over your new scarred nose and graft it there. It will grow and cover the scar, and when everything's lovely, that skin connection with your forehead will be severed and the ragged edges trimmed and presently nature will do the rest. Six months after the operation I'll defy anybody but an expert to discover you've got a custom-made nose."

The girl's eyes shone. "Is it true, Lanny, is it true? It's so hard to believe in miracles."

"Science pulls 'em off daily, my dear."

Nance changed the subject. "Here, here, we're gabbling like a pair of geese. The linen, woman, where's the linen? Off with your hat and coat. While you're getting it I'll run upstairs and get your mules."

"After dinner I must do some more pumping," thought Lanny. "The information will be invaluable to Stephen. Strange case! Total amnesia sometimes, only partial amnesia at others. Dreadful mixture."

When Dan McNamara came home about midnight from the regular weekly meeting of the police commission, he found his ex-convict guest up and waiting for him. "I had two burglars here tonight, about ten o'clock, Chief," he announced.

The chief sat down and loaded his pipe. "I was expecting them, my boy. Did they ask you any questions?"

"No. They just searched the house. I don't think they touched anything except the lipstick on the bureau over there," he said.

"Did they take the lipstick?" Dan asked.

"They didn't take it, they looked at it," McNamara sighed. The case was getting a little thick for him when it became complicated with lipsticks. He went to the telephone and got Stephen Burt out of bed.

"Did a certain party, while a guest at my house, ask you to bring out a lipstick when you called in the course of your professional duties, doctor?"

"Oh, yes." "Thanks. Goodnight." McNamara hung up and went to the room lately occupied by Nance Belden. On the bureau he found a lipstick. "Vanity is always the undoing of a crook," he sighed and went to bed, greatly troubled in his mind at what was, to him, indubitable knowledge that Flynn and Angellotti, even though they had failed to find their quarry, must be convinced, beyond the shadow of a doubt, that he had harbored an escaped convict in his home.

He passed a sleepless night but he did some solid thinking, so there was no lost time. He had hoped, by providing this sick convict as an excuse for Doctor Burt's nightly visits, to throw Flynn and Angellotti off the scent—and now the scent was hotter than ever.

"Now, what will they do? They're morally certain she went to Lanny's house the night she escaped and that Lanny got her out of there in the nick of time and took her here. Now that she's escaped them here they may suspect she's doubled back to Lanny's house. Murderation! However, those two dicks will never bother her without fortifying themselves with a search warrant. They'd be too afraid of me. But with a search warrant and the girl to show for their pains they'll have me foul. I couldn't open my mouth—if they bring the girl into headquarters I'll have to give them a cheer and congratulate them."

He decided Flynn and Angellotti would sleep on their evidence and the suspicions it had aroused, compare notes in the morning and decide upon a course of action. They would have to adduce some nominal evidence to support their suspicion before the district attorney would consent to issue the search warrant, for a search warrant is not issued lightly. In the morning they would induce some stoopidpigeon to tell the district attorney that he had seen Nance Belden's face at the window of Lanny's home. Possibly they might induce the patrolman on that beat to stretch the truth a little.

"I can't get Nance out of Lanny's house tonight and I can't get her out in daylight tomorrow, but I must get her out tomorrow night," he decided. "But how?"

He was at his office at eight next morning. At eight-thirty he looked into the detectives' room and saw Flynn and Angellotti in profound conference. Half an hour later he stepped out of a taxi two blocks from Lanny's house, and when the cab had disappeared, he made his way to the house and was admitted by Lanny.

"Nance has got to make a clean getaway," he assured her earnestly, "because tonight Flynn and his pal may come with a search warrant. Now, here are half a dozen harmless hand grenades that burst on impact. Three of them are tear gas bombs and three are stink bombs."

"Now, I'll tell you exactly how they'll make the pinch. They'll not come during the day, because they know you aren't at home and that Nance wouldn't answer that bell anyhow. But tonight, one of them will ring the front doorbell and shove the search warrant under your nose and step inside. The other will, in the meantime, have gone around to your back door to prevent the girl's escape in that direction. There's a cement floor around your kitchen door, is there not?"

Homes of Candidates

There is no provision of the Constitution requiring the President and Vice President to be from different states; in 1840 Harrison and Tyler, both born in Virginia, were elected President and Vice President.

"I DON'T CARE IF IT IS AT A CHURCH BAZAAR. I DON'T THINK A WHOLE LOT OF IT!"

"MADAME ZERO, MY HUSBAND HERE DOESN'T BELIEVE IN MENTAL TELEPATHY—MAYBE YOU CAN CONVINCE HIM IT'S POSSIBLE."

"NOW, AS AN EXAMPLE—MR. NEJDOR—IF I SHOULD TELL YOU WHAT YOU'RE THINKING RIGHT NOW, WHAT WOULD YOU CALL THAT?"

"I'D CALL IT A VERY EMBARRASSING SITUATION!"

INCREASE NOTED IN ENROLLMENTS FOR FIRST GRADE

Thirty-Five Children in Receiving Class at Grammar School

With two more pupils enrolling in the first grade at the Centerville Grammar school Tuesday, the number of incoming pupils was raised to 35. This is an increase of 11 over last year's starting class, according to Principal Thomas Maloney.

The total enrollment in the school on the opening day was 220. A number more are expected to swell the total this week.

The graduating class this year, however, will be smaller, the principal points out, only 26 being enrolled as compared with 41 last time. The seventh grade numbers only 20, which forecasts an even smaller graduating class next year.

The only change in the faculty this time is that requested by Miss Antoinette Botelho, which enables her to teach only half-time. She asked the change to allow more time for her special music studies.

To be of early California type, the new building will add considerably to the section of town in which it is being built. The old Dusterberry shop, recently occupied by the Coit workshop, has been removed. A small garage, used at the present time by Judge Allen G. Norris will be moved back from the street.

ARRAIGNMENT HERE TOMORROW FOR 3 SUSPECTS

Constables Tom Silva and O'Brien, southern Alameda county officers, proved conclusively last week that the criminal invariably returns to the scene of his crime, when they arrested Antonio Achoa and Jose Salario, alleged to have burglarized the K. Matsumoto store at Alvarado recently.

Learning from Matsumoto that some of the stolen goods were found across the street from the store, the officers concluded that the criminals had planned to make a second trip. The constables' patience in waiting at the cache was finally rewarded, when three men appeared at the scene, evidently looking for the hidden loot. All three were seized, but one, Santos Palma, was later released. On testimony of the others, Constable Silva and Deputy Sheriff James Ritchie arrested Rito Aredondo the following day. He is said to be implicated in the robbery.

Achoa, Salario and Aredondo were hauled before Judge Allen G. Norris Friday for arraignment. They will come up for preliminary hearing tomorrow afternoon. The officers stated that the remainder of the stolen goods was found near the Patterson place, evidently where the alleged thieves had hidden it.

Pythian day at the San Diego fair, was one of the high spots of the trip, Dusterberry said. Governor Frank Merriam attended.

Roy Trescott, past president; Dwight Cogswell, Bill Lazzarine, Albert and Joe Pashote are committeemen in charge of arrangements for the event.

At the election, held last week, the following were named to direct the civic organization for the next twelve months:

Joe Pashote, president; Valentine Tuscon, vice president; Tony Martin, treasurer; A. Scott, secretary; Al Pashote, chairman of the board of directors. Other directors are Dwight Cogswell, J. R. Trescott and A. E. Francis.

Pashote, who has been chairman of the organization's publicity committee, is also manager of the Newark baseball team. He has worked out an active program for the group during the next few months.

Foremost on the calendar will be the presentation of a play, "Civil Service," to be staged at Livermore in conjunction with the American Legion Post of that city, as a joint benefit. The production, being coached by Frank Jones, will have the following in the cast: Frank Jones, William Lazzarine, James Collins, Ed Kettmann, Ruth Townsend, Judith Gronley, Elizabeth Louden-slager and Jennie Hoffman.

body of Will Rogers before taking it upon herself to head a committee, whose object was to erect a memorial to that noble character and gifted man. Be it said to the credit of Mrs. Rogers, her two sons and daughter, no notice was taken of this third-rate actress' attempt to link her name with the memory of Rogers' unsullied character, true through the years to the traditional standards of American domestic conventions.

The Hearst papers screamed with the Davies' suggestion. The Los Angeles Times remained discreetly silent.

A monument will be built here in Los Angeles county, and probably elsewhere to perpetuate for future generations the memory of Will Rogers, but the monument will neither be inspired by such a woman as Marion Davies nor will it be unveiled amid the fanfare of the Hearst newsreel.

A Question of Good Taste

All delicacy—all restraint—every fundamental principal of propriety—has been thrown to the winds by the Los Angeles papers.

The Illustrated News, a few mornings ago, had a picture of hospital attendants lifting up the dead body of a girl, sixteen, who had died of an illegal operation. Can one imagine anything more indelicate? How unfair to the poor dead girl—for indeed—she who is without sin, let him cast the first stone at her. How cruel to her parents, her friends! How coarse and degraded the editorial mind that thought running such a picture the function of a newspaper!

But the little penny sheet has company. The Examiner Saturday morning was just as "enterprising." A girl had been shot by her jealous sweetheart. The photographer was right there, and got a picture of her slumped in the back seat of the automobile, with blood still running down her waist front.

We are really becoming ashamed to be classed as a newspaper publisher. The fine traditions of our father are nowhere to be seen. The mad race for advertising lineage and the undignified scramble for the pennies of the poor has killed in nearly every newspaperman the noble aspirations of journalism as taught by our father and his newspaper contemporaries.

Keep 'Em Under Wraps!

We have seen so many near-naked men, women and children during the last few days that the sight has almost turned our stomach. There is not one naked man in a thousand that is pleasing to the eye, nor one woman in the nude out of a hundred that has any kind of form at all. Maybe we are getting old, but we prefer to see people with their clothes on. Man is an ugly animal in the primitive state and woman is nothing to rave about.

Congregational Church News

The pastor will attempt an answer to one of the most baffling of all questions which have to do with religion. The question is: "What constitutes true religious experience, and how can this experience be affirmed?" The answer will be the subject of the pastor's next eight sermons. If you are interested in the deeper phases of religious faith, you are urged to miss none of these sermons.

All organizations connected with the church will start their fall activities this week. The Ladies' Guild will hold its first fall meeting today at the Ellsworth home. The Sunday School will begin at the usual hour of ten o'clock. There will be several changes in the department heads of the Sunday school, all for greater efficiency and better service. Parents cannot afford to allow their children to miss a weekly religious service.

Christian Endeavor will convene at the parsonage at 7 o'clock. The pastor and his wife will be hosts at a party given in honor of Christian Endeavor members who were graduated from Washington Union High school, and who are now attending a college or university. Come and help make our first meeting of the new season a success.

Cull Family Reunion Held at Historic Church

The old Cull ranch, in Cull canyon, near Hayward, was the scene Sunday of the annual family reunion of the Culls, an event that brings members from many distant points. The historic ranch, numbered among the earliest in the south county, was settled in 1848 by W. S. Cull, who came to California from Kentucky.

Those from Niles who attended the event were: Mrs. E. C. Kennard, Mr. and Mrs. William D. Cull and Mr. and Mrs. James Cull.

HOME HONORED BY NEW ENGLAND SOCIETY

Fifty members of the New England Society, of Oakland, paid a visit to the Masonic Home, at Decoto Sunday. Arriving late in the morning, the delegation was received by a committee of New Englanders, headed by Mrs. Anna Barton, chairman. She was assisted by Superintendent Hartman, Matron Richardson, and others of the home family.

A basket luncheon, with table service and coffee supplied by the home management, was served at noon. During the luncheon greetings were received from the San Diego State of Maine Society, which organization sponsored a "Maine Day" at the San Diego fair on Tuesday.

In the afternoon the visitors presented a fine entertainment of vocal and instrumental music and readings in the auditorium, with a large number of the home residents as guests. In the absence of Dr. Giberson, the program was directed by Mrs. Beulah Tarlton. Mrs. Mary Abercrombie acted as chairman, and was heard in humorous readings. The opening numbers consisted of group singing, led by Mrs. Pillsbury, a native of Maine. One of the features was the fiddling of "Dad" Pettis, 92-year-old violinist.

Members of the Orient Chapter, Order of Eastern Star, Centerville, have been congratulated by Mrs. Minnie Viola Collins, grand matron, for the splendid luncheon provided by the chapter on Saturday, August 17, for the officials of the east bay association.

tion farther back in the store. When the customers left, Nakamura turned to find himself looking into the muzzles of three pistols. He was curiously commanded to open the till. A $10 bill and the balance in silver was pocketed by the gang. Checks of greater value were left. The proprietor was then commanded to march out of the store, then told to walk toward Main street without looking back. When he reached the corner he heard the sound of a car speeding away in the direction of Niles. He did not see the vehicle. He is of the opinion that the three are professional gunmen.

A call was immediately made for Constable Tom Silva at the Lion's club meeting, but he had just been called out on another case. Silva came later with Deputy Sheriff James Ritchie and inspected the scene of the theft. Police are working on the case this week.

Nakamura suffered a similar loss in 1935, when two men fled him and his family and looted the store. The year before that, thieves broke into his establishment and escaped undetected with a quantity of goods.

The rumor that the MacMarr store had also been robbed was denied by Clair Bettencourt, manager. It later developed that the names of the stores, both groceries, had been confused.

Hunters Bag Deer in Local Hills Sunday

Niles deer hunters found the sultry week-end a good time to comb the ranges, it seems, following reports that three critters were bagged on Sunday.

Ed Rose, who was accompanied by Romeo Brunell, brought in a fine two-pointer from Rocky ridge. The buck tipped the beam at ninety pounds.

Mal Santos was another successful nimrod, with a big three-pointer to his credit.

R. Calhoun, also of Niles, was successful in his quest, bagging a nice buck.

FOR HIRE
A BIG STRONG MAN
willing to work a 10-hour day for 4.4c

"Kilowatt" is a mysterious term to many. It's a unit of power, equaling one and one-third horsepower or the power of ten men.

A kilowatt hour isn't a time hour. It's the time consumed in using a kilowatt of electric energy.

ONE KILOWATT HOUR EQUALS

- A horse and a pony working together for one hour or
- One man working for 10 hours.

REMEMBER the first vacuum cleaner you ever used? Right then you put kilowatts to work. (Think of them either as horsepower or manpower.) Right then you decided your days of sweeping with a broom were over for all time. Electricity is, no doubt, doing the hard work of many other jobs in your home, because it does them easily and well for little money. Even a few pennies (that's little money, to be sure) will do a lot of scrubbing, beating, rubbing and churning when it hires electric servants.

4.4c for electricity will scrub 4 tubsfull of clothes, and in addition will beat batter for 2 dozen cakes, sweep 6 room-size rugs, and turn a sewing machine for an afternoon of dressmaking. . . . Honestly, doesn't electricity work cheaply?

Even in the Orient, where labor is the cheapest, you can't hire a household servant to work ten hours for several times 4 cents.

We have told you often that our rates are among the lowest in the country.

Don't take our word for it.

The Federal Power Commission ranks us as being only 19th from lowest in the United States for 40 kw-h of domestic use.

The national average rate for a kilowatt hour of electricity for domestic use is 5.3 cents. The P. G. & E. average is 4.4.

The national average for farm power is 2.8 cents per kw-h. Our average was 1.8 cents in 1934.

Even in the Orient, where labor is the cheapest, you can't hire a household servant to work ten hours for several times 4 cents.

When he first came to Newark Zahren worked at the James Graham plant as a moulder for several years, then took over the Newark Hotel, which he ran until poor health caused him to give it up.

The deceased, who had been in the hospital for three years, is survived by two nephews, James Miller, of Newark, and Harry Miller, of Niles, and a niece, Mrs. Pauline Brown, of Mission San Jose.

Pallbearers at the funeral were: Bob May, Mike Holford, Fred Dittman, Axel Berkman, Manuel Texera and Art Glededen. Interment was at the Catholic cemetery in Hayward.

MAY BUILD HOUSES OF EGGS AND MILK

Better and Cheaper Building Materials Promised.

New York.—Even eggs and milk may enter the making of new construction materials in a building boom predicted by famous chemists at the opening session of the American Chemical society's tercentenary celebration.

A boom in the building industry inspired by discoveries of chemists, many of them made during the depression, was forecast by Prof. James R. Withrow of Ohio State university. This inspiration includes better and cheaper materials, he said, than even these provided by nature.

New mineral wools were listed as promising heat and cold insulation at low cost. Electric wires will have thinner insulation, both safer and requiring much less space for wiring.

Artificial stones are already made in every color and with any degree of hardness a customer desires. New glues smell no better, but bugs of various sorts no longer eat them.

Mexican Dog Once Large

The Mexican hairless dog of an older age is said to have stood four feet high at the shoulder, in fact—larger than any existing breed of dog today. It was supposed to have had an elephant-like hide, great tusks and powerful jaws hung from a heavy long skull.

The Charing Cross District

The district of Charing Cross in London occupies the site of the ancient village of Cherringe, where in 1291 a Gothic cross was erected by Edward I to mark the spot where the bier of his wife, Eleanor, had been set down on its journey to Westminster abbey.

Clover Is Cut for Seed When Heads Are Matured

Clover for seed is cut when the greatest number of mature seed heads are available. If cutting is too early, seed is immature. If cutting is delayed, the heads shatter badly. Clover cut for seed may be cured in the windrow or in the cock, or it may be stacked and allowed to go through a "sweat." By the latter method the quality of clover "straw" remaining after threshing is not as good as when the clover is threshed from the windrow.

Producers of red clover seed generally believe that damp, rainy weather is detrimental to the setting of seed. But experiments indicate moisture does not limit the setting of seed, if pollen is transferred from plant to plant. Excessive moisture does, however, limit the activities of insects. After heavy rains in hot weather, some of the pollen disintegrates and with lessened insect activity many flowers are not properly fertilized.

Really "Blue Monday"

The home laundry of the eighties was often a washtub on a bench in the shed or the back yard. Indoors in the kitchen clouds of steam rose from the wash boiler on the stove. It was washday and blue Monday.

The Cream Of Ice-Creams

WHEN the French want to express the fact that something is particularly fine they speak of it as "the cream of the cream". That's a vivid expression, but not too vivid to express the satisfaction to be found in really fine ice-creams.

Your summer fetes will be more festive if you learn the ways of modern mousses and parfaits and other frozen creams, and also the new ways of serving them. Introduce them at your porch parties in pretty frilled paper cups, or piled high in colorful parfait glasses. Here are two that will make the dessert social register:

They're Cooling Too

Mocha Mousse: Add one-fourth cup of strong coffee to the contents of one 5½-ounce can of chocolate syrup. Beat two cups of cream so that it does not become too stiff, add two tablespoons confectioners sugar and then mix with the chocolate. Freeze in refrigerator trays or in an ice and salt mixture. Or the mousse may be poured into individual paper cases, then placed in the freezing trays or in a container of ice and salt. This serves eight persons.

Pear and Strawberry Parfait: Add sufficient water to the syrup from one cup of canned pears to make two cups of liquid. Bring to boiling, pour over one package of lime gelatin and stir until dissolved. Cool. Add the pears, diced, and pour into eight tall glasses. Set in the refrigerator to harden. When ready to serve, beat one cup of cream, add three tablespoons confectioners sugar, one-fourth cup of crumbled macaroons and one-fourth cup of sliced fresh strawberries. Pile on top of the gelatin. Do not beat the cream too stiff. This serves eight persons.
